

Fiji Tourism Development Program in Vanua Levu

What's Holding Tourism Back?

✈ Infrastructure & Services:

- Limited air and road connectivity
- Gaps in water, waste, and energy services

🏛 Institutional Coordination:

- Need stronger collaboration and integrated planning among agencies and stakeholders
- Need cross-agency planning group
- Overlapping tourism strategies

👛 Private Sector Investment:

- MSMEs, women-led entrepreneurs and community-based tourism organizations lack access to finance, skills & market access and to business development services

🌊 Environmental Degradation

- Inadequate waste systems & unmanaged tourism pressure
- Natural assets under threat from climate change
- Limited support for eco-conscious development

🌧 High Climate Risk

- Cyclones, floods, and rising seas impact people and tourism
- Infrastructure is vulnerable
- Tourism perception and safety are at stake

What will success look like?

Improved Infrastructure & Liveability:

Upgraded airports, safer roads, enhanced sanitation, and clean energy solutions will serve both tourists and local residents.

Empowered Communities:

Community-based tourism initiatives and skills training will increase local participation and ensure that economic benefits stay within Vanua Levu.

Economic Growth & Jobs:

The Project will stimulate private investment, support MSME development, and create new employment opportunities, particularly for women and youth.

Environmental Protection:

Investments in marine managed areas, waste systems, and conservation will protect biodiversity, enhance ecosystem services, and improve the destination's appeal to high-value tourists.

Stronger Climate Resilience:

Climate-smart infrastructure, early warning systems, and resilient tourism planning will reduce risk and improve response to future disasters.
